We Listen to Our Clients

The first thing we do with a case is make sure we and the client clearly understand the issues involved and have realistic expectations about how the case might unfold. We conduct a thorough investigation, retain experts, and assemble our resources to ensure the best possible result is achieved at every stage of a case.

We Get Results

Dedication to providing quality representation to the health care community is part of our culture. Our team is led by experienced attorneys who have a genuine appreciation for the medical and healthcare fields through years of defending these cases through trial.

The choice of a lawyer is an important decision and should not be based solely upon advertisements

Our Approach

Our successes are meaningless if we don't deliver our services with value. HeplerBroom's Professional Liability Malpractice Group uses its wide range of experience and knowledge to evaluate each case and assemble our resources for effective, efficient representation.

Strategic planning, attention to detail, and ongoing communication form an integral part of how we handle every case. Working as a team, we collaborate with clients to develop the best strategy for each case. Sometimes early resolution may be the best option, whereas in other cases a comprehensive and aggressive defense is warranted. Our early assessment identifies the various strategies available, to which we add our recommendations for the particular case involved.

Our Experts

Over the years, we have developed relationships with health care experts who specialize in areas such as neurosurgery, neurology, psychiatry, gerontology, diabetes, internal medicine, infectious disease, surgery, orthopedics, wound care, and nursing home administration. The expert witnesses we retain are properly trained and have extensive experience in their fields.

Our Goal

Long-term satisfaction is our goal for every case we handle. We believe our dedication and skill coupled with the value of our services allows us to achieve that goal.
