

Products Liability

HeplerBroom LLC has successfully represented manufacturers and distributors of products for over 50 years. While this representation includes jurisdictions throughout the country, our Products Liability Group is especially suited for and experienced in handling complex and high exposure cases in some of the most litigious jurisdictions in the United States. These venues include the Illinois counties of Cook, Madison, and St. Clair; the U.S. District Courts for the Northern and Southern Districts of Illinois; and the state and federal courts in St. Louis, Missouri. Our experienced trial counsel, supported by a team of professionals using advanced litigation technology and resources, have successfully defended cases involving:

- tobacco
- pharmaceuticals
- chemicals (including asbestos, lead, benzene, and manganese)
- consumer products automobiles and tires
- recreational vehicles and boats
- electrical equipment
- medical devices and equipment
- manufacturing and industrial production devices
- power tools
- concrete and prestress products
- farm equipment
- elevators
- electrical equipment
- construction equipment

This representation includes the defense of manufacturers in class action litigation, and our uniquely qualified class action attorneys work closely with our products liability team on these cases.

No matter the product involved or the complexity of the litigation, HeplerBroom's product liability attorneys provide aggressive, competent, and cost-effective representation to our clients.
