

Premises Liability

We are uniquely experienced and positioned to support and defend you and your contracts in premises claims of all kinds – from retail establishments to power plants and refineries and residential facilities and condominiums.

We skillfully navigate the unique challenges presented by premises' claims, applying our vast experience across commercial and residential facilities of all kinds, including bodily injury and property damage claims, third-party criminal liabilities, hazardous substance exposure claims, contract formation and enforcement, and risk transfer.

HeplerBroom attorneys have a proven history of excellent results representing premises owners, operators, management companies, and contractors across Illinois, Missouri, Indiana, and Wisconsin. We understand the often complex issues and contractual relationships involved, and skillfully navigate the unique challenges presented across a wide-range of commercial and residential settings, including: power generation and oil refineries; production and food processing facilities; breweries; paper and steel mills; bars, restaurants, nightclubs, and other retail establishments; retail centers and shopping malls; residential/condominium facilities and homes; and medical facilities and nursing homes as well as municipalities.
