HeplerBroom's Edwardsville office (located in Madison County, across the street from the county courthouse) serves central and southern Illinois.

Edwardsville is home to HeplerBroom's first office, whose history dates to 1894. Over the years, it has handled cases in a wide variety of practice areas. Today, its attorneys handle everything from appellate cases to matters for the public utility industry, with a strong focus on the defense of personal injury, premises and product liability, pharmaceutical and medical devices, toxic torts, and talc litigation.
